

9

Ways to Teach Your kids Bible Stories

Only One Life Publishing
Helping Children See God in Everything

Make Bible Stories Come Alive – 9 Joyful Teaching Tips for Parents

Faith-filled, fun, and unforgettable ways to teach
God’s Word—even to wiggly little ones with short attention spans.

Only One Life Publishing
Helping Children See God in Everything

Introduction

Teaching Bible stories to toddlers and young children isn't just about reading a passage—it's about planting seeds of truth, wonder, and trust in God that can grow for a lifetime. We know the challenges: short attention spans, busy days, and little hearts that squirm and wander. But every giggle, every repeated story, and every moment of connection counts. That's why we've created this simple guide filled with joyful, hands-on ideas to help you turn ordinary moments into eternal ones through Bible storytelling.

Here are 9 joyful ways to teach Bible stories to your child:

1. Tell it Like a Storybook Use expressive voices, big reactions, and wide eyes! Turn each Bible story into a dramatic performance. Children love storytelling that feels like a real adventure.

2. Use Visual Aids Pictures, storybooks, puppets, and simple props can help young minds stay focused and make the story more real.

3. Sing the Story Make up simple songs or use existing Bible story songs. Singing makes learning fun and helps children remember what they've heard.

4. Act It Out Let your child be David, Goliath, Jonah, or the Good Samaritan. Use scarves, towels, or costumes from home to create a fun and faith-filled drama. Jesus often taught through parables that invited people to step into the story—and so can you!

5. Ask Questions – Even If They Don’t Know the Answer “Why do you think Moses was afraid?” or “What would you do if you saw a big fish like Jonah?” These kinds of questions help them process and participate.

6. Repeat, Repeat, Repeat Repetition is how children learn. Don’t be afraid to tell the same story every night for a week—with a new twist each time.

7. Create a Bible Story Box Fill a box with random items like a crown, fish, rock, robe, or tiny boat. Pull one out and let your child guess the story. Then tell it!

8. Use Movement and Sound March around like the Israelites at Jericho. Whisper like Samuel. Shout like the walls falling down! Movement helps learning stick.

9. Connect It to Their World Tie each story to something familiar. “Jesus calmed the storm—remember the thunder we heard last night?” “Daniel trusted God with the lions—just like how you were brave at the dentist.” These small connections bring big meaning.

You don't need to be a teacher, actor, or singer to bring the Bible to life. You just need to be present—with love, patience, and a willingness to grow alongside your child. What may feel small now—one story, one question, one song—can echo into eternity.

You're not just teaching a story—you're shaping a soul, and no one else can play your part.

Only One Life Publishing
Helping Children See God in Everythin